

"Bought and Paid For"

Text: 1 Corinthians 6:12-20

Grace, mercy, and peace be multiplied to you in the revelation of Jesus Christ as your own individual Savior from sin, death, and eternal torment in hell. Amen.

Dear Fellow Inhabitants of the temple of God – which is the body he has given us:

Interesting how words that are more or less synonyms can give such different impressions. "Confident," for example, is not necessarily a bad way to be. The same cannot be said if someone refers to you instead as "overbearing" or "pompous." So also someone who is "well-read" is seen as smart and informed, while "book-worm" and "know-it-all" typically carry different flavors. "Smooth" is better than "slick," "stout" is better than "fat," and "consistent" is better than "boring." The difference in these pairs of words is in the meaning or stigma assigned by society.

The same holds true for jobs, which is why folks routinely spice up their job titles. "Media Distribution Specialist" just sounds way cooler than paperboy. "Field Nourishment Consultant" sounds better than waiter. "Transparency Enhancement Facilitator" sounds infinitely more important than window washer.

So, with that in mind, take a look back at the early days here on the prairie. What would you want to be called if you moved onto some land that didn't necessarily belong to you and just started living there? The folks who first moved to this area and began living on land they didn't actually own were given rather dashing titles like "trail blazers," "explorers," "mountain men," or "pioneers." After the pioneers came the settlers. After the settlers came the ranchers and farmers. But somewhere along the line there came another category of folks. They pretty much did what everyone before them had done – settled into a place they hadn't necessarily paid for. But by the time they came on the scene the land was pretty much all claimed, legally or otherwise. That's why this last group was known as squatters. Even if you didn't know anything about the name, the word itself just doesn't sound good. Who would ever want to boldly proclaim at a family reunion, "Why, yes. My wife and I are squatters!"?

The problem with squatters was that they were often seen as ingrates who tried to live off the hard work of others, but who seemed to show little or no gratitude for the hard work that had been done by someone else to make their home what it was. Often they had little regard or respect for the land, since they were always in doubt as to whether or not they would be able to keep it. They often proved to be the bane of the rightful landowner and a source of constant friction and strife.

I wonder sometimes just how our God sees us. Our text for this morning tells us that we are living in dwellings that are not our own and benefitting from the work of Another, and yet we tend not only to act as if our lives are ours, but to routinely misuse and disrespect them. Does God see us as tenants, settlers, or just no-account squatters? This is one of the questions that we will seek to answer on the basis of our text for this morning, found in the Sixth Chapter of Paul's First Letter to the Church in Corinth:

ESV 1 Corinthians 6:12-20 "All things are lawful for me," but not all things are helpful. "All things are lawful for me," but I will not be enslaved by anything. ¹³ "Food is meant for the stomach and the stomach for food"--and God will destroy both one and the other. The body is not meant for sexual immorality, but for the Lord, and the Lord for the body. ¹⁴ And God raised the Lord and will also raise us up by his power. ¹⁵ Do you not know that your bodies are members of Christ? Shall I then take the members of Christ and make them members of a prostitute? Never! ¹⁶ Or do you not know that he who is joined to a prostitute becomes one body with her? For, as it is written, "The two will become one flesh." ¹⁷ But he who is joined to the Lord becomes one spirit with him. ¹⁸ Flee from sexual immorality. Every other sin a person commits is outside the body, but the sexually immoral person sins against his own body. ¹⁹ Or do you not know that your body is a temple of the Holy Spirit within you, whom you have from God? You are not your own, ²⁰ for you were bought with a price. So glorify God in your body.

So far the very words of our God. Confident that God will keep his promise to visit us with his power, comfort, strength, and wisdom whenever we come to him in his Word, so we pray, "Sanctify us by your truth, O Lord. Your word is truth." Amen.

The greatest and perhaps most difficult lesson of this text with which we must first come to grips is the fact that you and I don't own ourselves. Hear that again and allow it to sink in: You and I don't own ourselves. We are, in fact, bought and paid for.

The unbelieving world around us would fairly quiver with rage at such a statement. In fact the very fabric of who they are and what they do is woven from the notion that they do, in fact, belong only to themselves. Think for a moment of the great and ongoing sins of our society and you will find that in each case the evil is justified on the basis of self-ownership. Abortion jumps out as the most obvious example. Society's promotion and defense of what is unquestionably the most barbaric offense of our times – the ongoing slaughter of the sweetest and most helpless among us – that heinous evil is predicated and justified on the basis of the misguided notion that a woman owns her own body and therefore should be allowed to do whatever she wants with it. Plug in other great sins that our society seeks to justify and behind them all you will find the notion that man owns himself and therefore can do what he wants "as long as he doesn't infringe on the rights of another" (who, in their minds, is also self-owned).

Into that darkness shines the divine brilliance of our text: "Or do you not know that your body is a temple of the Holy Spirit within you, whom you have from God? You are not your own, ²⁰ for you were bought with a price. So glorify God in your body."

This will actually serve as a life-changer, if we let it. It can serve as a touchstone or centering point all throughout our lives. How so? Because it permanently alters our entire worldview. It forever changes how we look at everything that we do, all the decisions that we make, every direction that we take in life. Truly understanding these words from our God means that nothing will ever be the same again, because suddenly it isn't all about me; it's all about God. The question then is not "What makes me happy?" but "How can I best serve and glorify God with the gifts or tools that he's given me?" Not "How will this please or benefit me?" but "Will this please the Holy Spirit that lives within me?"

It also therefore radically alters our definition or perception of "success," doesn't it? The test is not then defined according to money, power, fame, and the accumulation of "stuff," but according to how well you serve the One who actually owns the body that you inhabit.

Does this mean then that everyone has to be a pastor or teacher to please God? Of course not. It is God who calls souls into those fields, and obviously he neither equips nor calls everyone for that work. But it does mean that you will be active and faithful in your church and faith-life regardless of your occupation. It means that as parents and grandparents you will consistently teach the one thing needful to your children and grandchildren, and you will want the Word of God to be the thread that runs through every single day.

That's sort of the picture of the perfect world in which you and I ought to live. But then we are dragged back to the image of the squatter, and we begin to wonder if that is really how God sees us. We have established the fact that our bodies and lives are not our own. They belong to God. You and I do not therefore have the option of "home ownership." Our options therefore are beloved guests or tenants, or loathsome squatters. The difference was spelled out in our text.

Evidently some of the folks in Corinth were using and abusing what had become a popular expression of the day: "All things are lawful for me!" This is squatter talk. This is the sort of thing you say to try to convince yourself that your sleazy behavior is somehow acceptable. Paul went on to put it all into perspective in our text when he said: "All things are lawful for me,' but not all things are helpful. All things are lawful for me,' but I will not be enslaved by anything."

Some of the Corinthians were evidently trying to justify their trashy behavior by claiming that since Jesus paid for all sins, their actions didn't really matter. Since Jesus has paid the penalty for every single sin, man is not saved or condemned by his actions but through faith in Jesus Christ. That much is true, but in their minds that apparently also meant that they could do pretty much whatever they wanted with impunity – that is somehow didn't matter and God didn't care.

This is exactly what scares non-Christians about our religion. They imagine that if you tell someone his actions no longer save or condemn him, man will naturally go on a tear. What they don't understand is the internal change that takes place at conversion. The true Christian is no longer a helpless slave to his passions – which is exactly why Paul said what he did in our text: "All things are lawful for me,' but I will not be enslaved by anything." He then went on to address the sewer that is sexual immorality, pointing out just why sexual immorality is so terrible: "Flee from sexual immorality. Every other sin a person commits is outside the body, but the sexually immoral person sins against his own body. ¹⁹ Or do you not know that your body is a temple of the Holy Spirit within you, whom you have from God?"

It's hard to come up with an example or analogy for how God feels about Christians committing sexual sins, so great and so loathsome is the evil in God's eyes. Think of building a magnificent, ornate temple to our God, and the filling it with raw sewage. Think of doing a complete, no-expense-spared renovation of your home, and then filling it with rotting, bloated road-kill carcasses that have been cooking for a couple days in the summer heat.

This is how repulsed each of us ought to be at the thought of allowing any sort of sexual immorality "inside the walls." Our bodies are temples of the Holy Spirit, who since conversion has been living within us. How appalling, how profoundly wrong, to introduce anything so unholy into the temple of the Holy Spirit that is now your body and life. The simple fact is we have no right whatsoever to do something like that because our bodies are God's temple. We are not our own. We have been bought and paid for by the blood of Jesus Christ.

Now, in case your old Adam is starting to feel sorry for itself because you don't get to do what others get to do, focus finally on these words in our text: "For you were bought with a price." That purchase price was, of course, the life-blood of Jesus Christ. Yet understand this well: every single human being has only two options – neither of which is self-ownership. The alternative to being owned and inhabited by the Holy Spirit through faith in Jesus Christ is ownership by sin and Satan. The hard cold fact is that you and I can never really own ourselves. We are owned by our God or we are owned by the devil. We are never – and can never be – the independent operators so many imagine.

Therefore far from existing as an ongoing burden or irritation, the fact that God owns and lives within us is our greatest joy and comfort – a constant source of amazement. Our text assures us that it was Jesus Christ who saved you and me from the eternal torment we had both earned and deserved. It is therefore only that old Adam in us that bristles at the thought of being owned, inhabited, and controlled by our Holy God. That new man in us couldn't be more pleased. That new, holy part in us rejoices daily in our inner communion with our God, and the priceless, intimate connection we personally have with him through faith in Jesus Christ as the one who has paid in full the debt we owed for our sins.

How could you and I ever feel burdened or displeased by the fact that God himself is the landlord of our bodies and lives? How could this intimate connection to our God ever be a bad or negative thing? How could we ever be anything but overjoyed at the news that we are indeed bought and paid for by the life and death of Jesus Christ? On the contrary we pray this morning that that Holy Spirit who lives now within us would never leave. We pray instead that he would continually make his presence known, and that he would give us the wisdom to make the sort of decisions that give honor to our God – never dishonoring the temples that are now our bodies and lives. Amen.

Scripture Readings

^{ESV} 1 Samuel 3:1-10 Now the young man Samuel was ministering to the LORD under Eli. And the word of the LORD was rare in those days; there was no frequent vision. ² ¶ At that time Eli, whose eyesight had begun to grow dim so that he could not see, was lying down in his own place. ³ The lamp of God had not yet gone out, and Samuel was lying down in the temple of the LORD, where the ark of God was. ⁴ Then the LORD called Samuel, and he said, "Here I am!" ⁵ and ran to Eli and said, "Here I am, for you called me." But he said, "I did not call; lie down again." So he went and lay down. ⁶ And the LORD called again, "Samuel!" and Samuel arose and went to Eli and said, "Here I am, for you called me." But he said, "I did not call, my son; lie down again." ⁷ Now Samuel did not yet know the LORD, and the word of the LORD had not yet been revealed to him. ⁸ And the LORD called Samuel again the third time. And he arose and went to Eli and said, "Here I am, for you called me." Then Eli perceived that the LORD was calling the young man. ⁹ Therefore Eli said to Samuel, "Go, lie down, and if he calls you, you shall say, 'Speak, LORD, for your servant hears.'" So Samuel went and lay down in his place. ¹⁰ ¶ And the LORD came and stood, calling as at other times, "Samuel! Samuel!" And Samuel said, "Speak, for your servant hears."

^{ESV} John 1:43-51 The next day Jesus decided to go to Galilee. He found Philip and said to him, "Follow me." ⁴⁴ Now Philip was from Bethsaida, the city of Andrew and Peter. ⁴⁵ Philip found Nathanael and said to him, "We have found him of whom Moses in the Law and also the prophets wrote, Jesus of Nazareth, the son of Joseph." ⁴⁶ Nathanael said to him, "Can anything good come out of Nazareth?" Philip said to him, "Come and see." ⁴⁷ Jesus saw Nathanael coming toward him and said of him, "Behold, an Israelite indeed, in whom there is no deceit!" ⁴⁸ Nathanael said to him, "How do you know me?" Jesus answered him, "Before Philip called you, when you were under the fig tree, I saw you." ⁴⁹ Nathanael answered him, "Rabbi, you are the Son of God! You are the King of Israel!" ⁵⁰ Jesus answered him, "Because I said to you, 'I saw you under the fig tree,' do you believe? You will see greater things than these." ⁵¹ And he said to him, "Truly, truly, I say to you, you will see heaven opened, and the angels of God ascending and descending on the Son of Man."

The Scripture Lessons: (Printed on the back page of this bulletin)

The Old Testament Lesson: (1 Samuel 3:1-10) Our first lesson today is the account of how the Lord first spoke to the young Prophet Samuel. One of the great lessons we take from this reading is the reminder to listen to the voice of our God. Though today he does not speak audibly, as in the time of Samuel, yet he does speak to us through his inspired writings. Even there it is necessary to "listen" carefully. God grant that we all learn to do so consistently.

The Psalm of the Day – Psalm 89 (See Insert)

The New Testament Lesson: (John 1:43-51) Last week we heard how Jesus began his public ministry at his baptism by John in the Jordan River. Our lesson this morning tells of how he began to gather and train his disciples for the great work that was yet to be done. Though Jesus alone could offer the payment for sin, he chose human beings to spread the news of what he has done. That work is ongoing. God called us to carry on that great work still today.

CLC News – The Traveling Vacation Bible School Committee is planning this summer's itinerary. If anyone at St. Paul would like to participate as a teacher or with flier distribution, please see the Pastor.

Pastoral Study Conference – Pastor Roehl is scheduled to attend a Study Conference in Pierre on Monday – leaving early and returning late.

Church Council Notes – Five Council members, plus the Pastor, met on 1/11. Treasurer Adams reported that we finished the year very close to on budget – although for the first time in several years we are beginning the new year with no reserve in the General Fund. The Council will look into the use of printed invitations as part of our outreach. The donation of a security camera and recording system by the Stocking family was accepted with thanks. Council member Mark Johnson has agreed to serve as Archivist, responsible for filing (on and off site) all permanent church records. Council will conduct a review and update as appropriate all permanent guidelines and manuals. Pastor Roehl was asked to investigate the video recording of our church services. Next meeting: February 1.

Thank You – We often tend to dwell on what is bad or wrong, rather than what is good and right. To this end the Church Council would like to acknowledge the "cheerful giving" of the members of St Paul during the past year. This is one of those things that the Lord himself has told us he loves. Once again, through your dedication and generosity, we were able to finish the year virtually on budget. "Well done, good and faithful servants."

Final Membership Application Announcement – Phil and Angela Pfennig, together with their minor children, have applied for membership at St Paul.
