

"Metamorphosis"

Text: Romans 12:1-8

Grace, mercy and peace be multiplied to you from our Triune God, Father, Son, and Holy Spirit, enabling you both to recognize and to live your lives in harmony with the profound change that he has already worked in each of you. Amen.

Dear Fellow Christians: it's an old joke, but applicable: How many German Lutherans does it take to change a lightbulb? Answer: "What's all this talk about 'change'?" It's interesting that while some of us don't really like change all that much, the majority of our country's citizens seem to believe that "change is good." It's a testament to humanity's natural optimism. Those who welcome change tend to assume that change will be for the better. It's also a product of mankind's natural arrogance, since we also believe we deserve to have things change always and only for the better. Yet pretty much every bad thing that has ever happened would constitute "change," and lots of bad stuff has happened. Change came when Eve ate from the forbidden tree, when the Children of Israel began worshipping the idols of Canaan, and when Samson got a haircut. No good came from those changes. In more modern times, change was ushered in on December 7, 1941 and on September 11, 2001, and more recently in Wuhan, China. Again, not a lot of good came from those changes.

Yet the human race continually and inexplicably advocates change, no matter how good things are going or how well the current system is working. Our country grew to be the envy of the entire planet, so by all means let's change it to something that has universally failed wherever it has been tried. One man/one woman unions produce stable family groups and form the bedrock of every prosperous society, so let's change all that and see what happens. Discipline in the home produces well-adjusted children and model citizens, so let's remove that discipline and just see what that change brings. You get the picture. Not all change is good. In fact that's part of the change cycle, isn't it? Adopting harmful changes guarantees that we will keep playing around with the system, optimistically assuming that someday we'll get it just right. And even if we do, we'll undoubtedly just change it again, always expecting something better.

The basic problem, of course, is sin. Mankind broke God's perfect creation, and did so based on the mistaken notion that change would bring improvement ("You will be like God, knowing good and evil."). One of the inevitable results of that particular change is that nothing on earth will ever again be perfect; nothing will ever again be "just right." Even when something is as good as sinful man can ever get it, human beings naturally assume that even that can always be improved. In a sense that is true, but not in the way the godless imagine. Human beings are not born good and perfect – ruined only over time by other human beings. God's Word tells us that human beings are born thoroughly sinful in every imaginable way. One change is therefore required – required – if we are to escape the consequences of our natural, inherited sinfulness. Our text for this morning speaks of that necessary change, labelling it with a word that we need to both understand and treasure: metamorphosis. The text that will instruct us in this is found in Paul's Letter to the Romans, the Twelfth Chapter:

^{ESV} Romans 12:1-8 I appeal to you therefore, brothers, by the mercies of God, to present your bodies as a living sacrifice, holy and acceptable to God, which is your spiritual worship. ² Do not be conformed to this world, but be transformed by the renewal of your mind, that by testing you may discern what is the will of God, what is good and acceptable and perfect. ³ ¶ For by the grace given to me I say to everyone among you not to think of himself more highly than he ought to think, but to think with sober judgment, each according to the measure of faith that God has assigned. ⁴ For as in one body we have many members, and the members do not all have the same function, ⁵ so we, though many, are one body in Christ, and individually members one of another. ⁶ Having gifts that differ according to the grace given to us, let us use them: if prophecy, in proportion to our faith; ⁷ if service, in our serving; the one who teaches, in his teaching; ⁸ the one who exhorts, in his exhortation; the one who contributes, in generosity; the one who leads, with zeal; the one who does acts of mercy, with cheerfulness.

This is God's Word. Remind yourself each time you hear or read words from the Bible that it is God himself who is speaking to you. Since that same God has told us, "Blessed are those who hear the Word of God and treasure it!" so also as we prepare our hearts to hear and treasure these words of our God, and to gain the blessings he offers, we pray, "Sanctify us by Your truth, O Lord. Your Word is truth." Amen.

Hard to escape the fact that we are approaching another election year. With perfect consistency non-incumbent politicians all promise change. "Elect me and I will deliver change!" – and by that they mean direction. They have to convince the majority that we are headed in the wrong direction. They know that voters won't elect them if they admit that the current office holder has us moving in the right direction.

Christians in particular need to understand the difference between "change" and "better." We were changed when we were brought to faith, but that doesn't mean there is no room for improvement, for "better." We trust that Jesus alone paid our sin-debt on the cross of Calvary. We never want that to change, but we do want our faith to grow. Stronger, not different. Better, not changed.

Our text talks about the one necessary change that had to take place in every human being. That's what that word "metamorphosis" is all about (which our text translated as "transformed.") We had to be "transformed" (changed) from our natural condition as children of evil to children of God. We had to be converted. The word "conversion" refers to a complete change of direction - a 180 degree turn. Instead of being headed for hell, the soul that is changed through conversion is headed for heaven. That's the metamorphosis that took place at our conversion, but we need to explore this a bit more to understand all that changed at our conversion.

God's Word tells us that many things become immediately available to the human being who has been converted that are not available to the unbeliever. The first privilege is that God will hear you whenever you communicate with him. This communication with God is of course called prayer, and the Bible tells us that true prayer is the sole possession of the believer. "No one comes to the Father, but by me" Jesus told us in John 14:6. At conversion we gain access to God the Father, the all-powerful, all-knowing creator of heaven and earth. The unbeliever, as we read in the parable of the Pharisee and the Tax Collector, prays only "with himself."

The second great benefit of conversion is that only after conversion can you do a truly good work. The unbeliever can perform many socially beneficial "good deeds," but that is all that they are - social acts of goodness. A truly good work, in the eyes of God and by his definition, can only be done out of love for the Savior you have come to know at your conversion. We read in Hebrews 11:6, "Without faith it is impossible to please God..." A good work is therefore something we do to thank God for the change (the metamorphosis) that he has already worked in us. God has forgiven our sins for Jesus' sake. Only those who believe that to be true can now thank him by doing what God himself defines as good.

The third great benefit is the knowledge and confidence that only those who have experienced this metamorphosis play a role in God's arrangement of the events of this world. In other words, when you are converted, from that point on and forever thereafter, you can have confidence that "all things work together for good." Not just for some but for you, for your good. God has promised you, personally, that he will make everything that happens work in some good, positive way for your eternal benefit.

Finally, only the converted Child of God can truly love God and want to thank him with obedience. Before conversion, all human beings are God's enemies, in open rebellion against their Creator. It is only after we are brought to faith that we can love God and even want to submit and live according to his will.

What all of this means is that at conversion we are truly and eternally changed – "transformed." At our metamorphosis we were changed from creatures that love only sin and evil, to children of God – sons and daughters who love what is good, right, and holy. Yet how is it then that we, as children of God, don't always and only love what is good, right, and holy? Because though the new man is alive within us, we still walk about in this loathsome body of death known as the Old Adam or sinful flesh.

Our text refers to the continual conflict between the Old and New Man on the basis of two key words: Conform and Transform. "Do not be conformed to this world, but be transformed by the renewal of your mind." At conversion we do not shed our sinful side - our old Adam or sinful flesh. That sinful side continually wars with the new man that is created in us at conversion. The old Adam, remember, is never converted, never changed. Conversion was the powerful working of God's Holy Spirit as he created something new in us. Our old Adam, unfortunately, was not affected by this metamorphosis. It even now rages against the new man in us, that part in the Christian that refuses any and all transformation. Our old Adam wants to prevent us from ever doing what our new man urges us to do. This war within us is seldom more intense than when we are tempted by those things for which the godless live. We are supposed to be "in the world, but not of the world." How exactly do we do that? Do we renovate the old, or start over new? The old Adam says, "Keep the old and adapt – as little as possible." The new man understands that we are new creations. Evil cannot be salvaged.

The new man is right, of course, but that evil side in each of us can be very convincing, to the point that we often find ourselves wishing we could salvage some of the old ways. That never works.

That's why our text spoke of "transformed" as opposed to "conformed." The devil continually lobbies for conformation. He wants us to compromise in such a way that we "have a form of Godliness, but deny its power." (2 Timothy 3:5) He wants us to bend and shape our lives according to everything that is of this world, and to just rearrange a few things here and there. His sales pitch is this: "You can have it both ways. You can do what the world does and love God all at the same time. You can devote yourself, your time and your treasure, to both. In fact you can still lust and covet and steal and hate, but now, instead of 'sin' you just call it 'Christian weakness' and convince yourself there is no other way."

We've all heard that "voice" for ourselves. It is the near constant force that makes us want to conform. It is what makes us want to indulge our every desire – exactly like the godless – and rationalize that we can give ourselves over to sin and still remain Christians and heirs of heaven. The problem is that God hates sin, and when the Bible talks about "the world" it is referring to the sinful world. The Holy Spirit through John told us in 1 John 2:15: "Do not love the world or anything in the world" and "If anyone loves the world, the love of the Father is not in him." God didn't tell us that because he wants us to be unhappy. He said it because he knows we cannot love and live for sin and still love and live for him. Both are masters, and we cannot serve two masters.

The death and resurrection of Jesus Christ is the basis of our metamorphosis – the profound change that has been accomplished in us. For us, it changed absolutely everything. It is, for example, only the heart made glad and sure by being born again in conversion that can willingly give up what was once so precious to us, and to regard as evil all that truly is evil.

Our text provided this incredible summary: "I appeal to you therefore, brothers, by the mercies of God, to present your bodies as a living sacrifice, holy and acceptable to God, which is your spiritual worship." That last phrase can also be translated: "This kind of worship is appropriate for you." That's exactly what we are talking about here, isn't it? We appropriately worship our God by daily beating our old Adam into submission and by "presenting our bodies as living sacrifices." What a perfect and unique way of summing up the life and focus of those who have undergone this amazing metamorphosis. Contrary to Old Testament sacrifices (which were all killed) today we go on living – an ongoing (living) sacrifice as we dedicate ourselves, heart and soul, to the service of our God – struggling daily to in no way conform to the world but to live as transformed children of God.

Can we do better? Of course, but not because we have the direction wrong. We now know our Savior, Jesus Christ, and we have been given faith to believe that Jesus lived and died to pay the horrible price for all of our sins. Now we not only stand forgiven in his sight, we have been transformed. That means, according to our text, that we are now able to "discern what is the will of God, what is good and acceptable and perfect." We have been blessed with the ability to be in the world but not of the world, as we trust and treasure the suffering and death of Jesus Christ above all else. Our text, in fact, encourages us to go all in – to dedicate ourselves completely to our Savior's service, according to our own individual gifts. No matter our station or calling, God help us to use every single one of those amazing gifts wholeheartedly and to the best of our ability – in his service and to his glory. Amen.

ESV Isaiah 51:1-6 "Listen to me, you who pursue righteousness, you who seek the LORD: look to the rock from which you were hewn, and to the quarry from which you were dug. ² Look to Abraham your father and to Sarah who bore you; for he was but one when I called him, that I might bless him and multiply him. ³ For the LORD comforts Zion; he comforts all her waste places and makes her wilderness like Eden, her desert like the garden of the LORD; joy and gladness will be found in her, thanksgiving and the voice of song. ⁴ "Give attention to me, my people, and give ear to me, my nation; for a law will go out from me, and I will set my justice for a light to the peoples. ⁵ My righteousness draws near, my salvation has gone out, and my arms will judge the peoples; the coastlands hope for me, and for my arm they wait. ⁶ Lift up your eyes to the heavens, and look at the earth beneath; for the heavens vanish like smoke, the earth will wear out like a garment, and they who dwell in it will die in like manner; but my salvation will be forever, and my righteousness will never be dismayed.

ESV Matthew 16:13-20 Now when Jesus came into the district of Caesarea Philippi, he asked his disciples, "Who do people say that the Son of Man is?" ¹⁴ And they said, "Some say John the Baptist, others say Elijah, and others Jeremiah or one of the prophets." ¹⁵ He said to them, "But who do you say that I am?" ¹⁶ Simon Peter replied, "You are the Christ, the Son of the living God." ¹⁷ And Jesus answered him, "Blessed are you, Simon Bar-Jonah! For flesh and blood has not revealed this to you, but my Father who is in heaven. ¹⁸ And I tell you, you are Peter, and on this rock I will build my church, and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it. ¹⁹ I will give you the keys of the kingdom of heaven, and whatever you bind on earth shall be bound in heaven, and whatever you loose on earth shall be loosed in heaven." ²⁰ Then he strictly charged the disciples to tell no one that he was the Christ.

ESV Romans 12:1-8 I appeal to you therefore, brothers, by the mercies of God, to present your bodies as a living sacrifice, holy and acceptable to God, which is your spiritual worship. ² Do not be conformed to this world, but be transformed by the renewal of your mind, that by testing you may discern what is the will of God, what is good and acceptable and perfect. ³ ¶ For by the grace given to me I say to everyone among you not to think of himself more highly than he ought to think, but to think with sober judgment, each according to the measure of faith that God has assigned. ⁴ For as in one body we have many members, and the members do not all have the same function, ⁵ so we, though many, are one body in Christ, and individually members one of another. ⁶ Having gifts that differ according to the grace given to us, let us use them: if prophecy, in proportion to our faith; ⁷ if service, in our serving; the one who teaches, in his teaching; ⁸ the one who exhorts, in his exhortation; the one who contributes, in generosity; the one who leads, with zeal; the one who does acts of mercy, with cheerfulness.

The Old Testament Lesson: (Isaiah 51:1-6) Eyes blinded by unbelief will never be able to recognize that Old Testament readings apply not only to the ethnic nation of Israel but to what Scripture refers to as the "Spiritual Israel" – which includes all who believe in Jesus Christ as Lord and Savior. This knowledge opens the Christian to a whole new level of understanding in connection especially with the Old Testament scriptures. This truth is made clear especially in the final verses of this reading.

The Psalm of the Day – Psalm 51 (Page 31) (Brown Hymnal)

The New Testament Lesson: (Matthew 16:13-20) Jesus told us that He would build His Church on the confession of Peter: "You are the Christ, the Son of the Living God." Jesus told Peter that he was blessed by God to have received this understanding and conviction, for it was given to him by God himself. Do you now also know Jesus to be the Christ? You too then have been blessed in the same way by God himself.
